The Dog Has No Mechanics. In no well attested case has a dog shown any sense as to the nature of any mechanical contrivance. Dogs will learn which way a door opens, and rarely if ever do they undiscerningly close it when it is slightly ajar when they wish to pass through the opening, but I have never been able to observe or obtain evidence to show that they would pull down the latch in the way in which a cat readily learns to do. Much as dogs have had to do with guns, they display no kind of interest in the arms except so far as they are tokens of sport to come. They connect the explosion with the capture of the game and will search for it in the direction in which the barrel was pointed. I have not, however, been able to find that they know, as they might readily do, when the weapon was loaded and when empty. They show no interest in it, such as monkeys readily display toward any mechanical contrivance to which their attention has been directed. All these negative features indicate that the mechanical side of the canine mind is entirely undeveloped.-London Standard.

Men Who Make Clubs.

As to social clubs of men, there are two classes of members-the positive and the negative. In an organization of a thousand members you will find, probably, nine hundred and ninetynine negatives and one positive. This one positive is seldom the president, but nearly always the treasurer or secretary. It is he who regards the club as his home, his family, his wife and children. His whole heart is wrapped up in its success. He brings in the new members and is always on hand to shoulder burdens which the negatives willingly impose upon him. He never rebels, never protests, never complains. A club is a community of selfish interests, as a rule, and every selfish negative agrees with every other selfish negative that such and such a man is the ideal secretary, treasurer or manager. A good secretary or treasurer is seldom promoted; he is too seful.-New York Press.

A man is but a cluster on the great numan grapevine. He begins to dry up the moment he is cut off from his ellows. There is something in the solldarity of the human race which cannot be accounted for in the sum total of all the individuals. Separation from the mass involves a mighty loss of power in the individual, just as there ss of cohesion and adhesion involved in the separation of the mole cules and atoms of the diamond. The value of the gem is in the close contact, he compactness and the concentration of the particles which compose it. The moment they are separated its value is gone. So a strong, effective man gets a large part of his strength from the vital connection with his fellows .- Sucess Magazine.

Founded on Herring Bones. Dutch monopoly of the North sea fishing grounds during the seventeenth century brought such wealth and prosperity to Amsterdam that the capital of Holland was popularly said to be founded on herring bones. No less than 50,000 Hollanders were directly engaged in fishing the coasts from near Yarmouth to as far north as the Shetlands, and 150,000 more were em-ployed, indirectly, in the distribution and sale of the fish. Sir Walter Raleigh pointed out to James I, how the Dutch sold to the Yarmouth herring mongers fish caught in their own seas for English gold, with which they built ananally a thousand ships and fishing

The Voice of Sincerity.

Children are said to be good, although unconscious, judges of human nature, and most of them do at least ecognize sincerity and detect pretense, "Come here, my little darling," said the book agent. She had a face which belied her words, but she was trying to caltivate the little daughter of the woman who had not yet come down "I do so love children," she added. In a clear tone, as she heard footsteps on the stairs, "but you seen to like the kitty better than me. Why are you so fond of her?"

'Cause she purs as if she meant it," said the little girl calmly.

When buying loose coffee or anything your grocer happens to have in his bin, how do you know what you are getting? Some queer stories about coffee that is sold in bulk, speak out. Could any amount of mere talk have persuaded millions of

of a century, if they had not found it superior to all other brands in Purity, Strength, Flavor and Uniformity?
